Rudolph Valentino Seems To Be Winning Fight For Life As End of Crisis is Drawing Near

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Great news for film fans.

Rudolph Valentino, "greatest lover of the screen," seems to be winning his fight for life at the Polyclinic hospital here, following a serious operation for gastric ulcers and appendicitis Sunday. "He is improved and the doctors are more hopeful than yesterday."

The hospital reported late this afternoon, adding that the star, however, would not pass the crisis of his illness for another twenty-four hours or so.

Physicians are not pretending to conceal the gravity of Rudy's condition, except from the patient himself. They are still struggling with peritonitis, which had set in even before the operation. If the infection can be kept from spreading, chances are all in favor of recovery.

Believing that he had only a simple operation, Valentino has been cheerful from the start. And it is this optimism and his extraordinary physical strength on which the physicians are relying.

If the men of science were superstitious, they would add to the other advantageous circumstances the fact that Rudy is on the eighth floor, the luckiest number in numerology and one to which his name vibrates. Also they would remember that he is in the so-called "lucky suite," the most expensive in the hospital, consisting of two luxurious rooms and bath.

With nothing to do but try to get well, the "Shiek" today concerned himself with the masses of flowers that completely inundated his rooms. Only those from personal friends—and they were numerous enough—found places there, the others Valentino directed to be sent to other rooms in the hospital.

Telephone calls, telegrams, letters, and personal "appearances" became so numerous that an "information booth" had to be set up in the hospital for the dispensing of the latest bulletins.

Among the less hectic callers were Norma Talmadge and her husband, Jose M. Schenck, chairman of the board of directors of United Artists. They could not see Rudy, they were told, so left a huge bouquet of flowers and said they would call some other time. Valentino's life is insured for $1,000,000 in order to protect Schenck from loss of his services.

S. George Ulmann, his personal representative, was the only person outside doctors and nurses admitted to the sick room.

Rudy smiled feebly, when he came in, and declared: "I've gotten out of worse fixes than this. I'll soon be on my feet again and making pictures."

While quiet prevailed in room 1, there was plenty of excitement at the hospital during the day. An unidentified man eluded attendants and gained entrance to the outer Valentino room before he was stopped. He was an Italian and merely wanted to pray for the actor, he said, and a window washer, hanging out a window on the third floor, lost his balance and hung precariously to the ledge until rescued.

That happened while there was a huge crowd outside the hospital, watching Betty Hughes, a show girl, get her picture taken with a monkey which she had brought to Rudy to "cheer him up."

Jack Dempsey, who had but recently been photographed with the "Shiek" and whose wife, Estelle Taylor, is scheduled to play opposite him in his next picture, telephoned solicitously from his training quarters at Saratoga Springs.

It is reported, too, that Ann Pennington of the dimpled knees and Dorothy Mackail, movie actress called in person at the hospital. Miss Pennington's flowers led all the rest in arriving.

One of today's eccentric callers was a girl who gave her name as Marie Markiewicz. She was crying hysterically and demanded permission to present Rudy with a poem she had written.

"Oh, I hope my beloved will not die," she moaned.

President Not In Favor Of Poison Alcohol

Treasury Department Must take All Responsibility if Poison Is Used in Alcohol

(By Universal Service)
PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—If the treasury department finally decides to put poisonous adulterants into liquor in an attempt to stop bootlegging, it must accept full responsibility for it.

President Coolidge today refused to give any of the schemes his official backing or disapproval.

He maintains that the treasury department, not himself, is charged with the responsibility of devising means to enforce the law.

The President's attitude was announced in denying published reports that he had ordered the treasury officials to abandon their plan to compel the use of poisonous adulterants.

President Coolidge had clipped the newspaper reports of the violent protests against the treasury's scheme and had sent them to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Winston without comment. It is understood that his action has interpreted in Washington as indicative of his disapproval and caused the immediate abandonment of the plan to use more violent adulterants.

FRIENDSHIP COSTS MAN JAIL TERM

George Mutchons, formerly of Greece and later of the Pullman shops in Richmond now is a resident of the Oakland jail, because he was too firm in his friendship for a fellow countryman.

According to Mutchons a friend of his needed $300 to breathe free air outside the city jail and Mutchons proceeded to aid his friend's desires. All went well and he collected from about 200 fellow countrymen when he came upon John Katgaros.

The latter was of the opinion that Mutchons' friend should stay in the jail if he didn't have the $300. Katgaros wasn't willing to contribute a cent.

Mutchons became enraged at the selfishness of Katgaros and at attention took place, ending in Mutchons' arrest.

Yesterday morning he appeared before Police Judge Edward J. Tyrrell and pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace. Judge Tyrrell gave him his choice of paying $50 or spending ten days in the county jail.

Mutchons chose the latter saying: "Me—I go to jail. My friend get the $50."

MARTINEZ, August 17.—Declaring that a $500 Liberty bond was unlawfully appropriated to satisfy a fine for bootlegging assessed to Andrew Branco, of Giant, C. F. O'Connor, an Oakland bail broker today filed suit against Justice of the Peace Frank Glass to recover bond or its equivalent and an additional $17.15 which the bond is said to have earned in interest at the time it was ordered applied on Branco's fine.

In his complaint O'Connor declares that Branco was arrested for possession of liquor, pleaded guilty and was fined $500 with the alternate of spending 500 days in the county jail, and that Branco came to Martinez prepared to go to jail but that the court ordered the Liberty bond applied on the judgment.

Justice Glass declared today that when cash is posted as bail, Liberty bonds are always accepted as cash. The court takes no cognizance whence comes the money or who posts it and thus it can legally be ordered held and applied to satisfy the judgment, any surplus being returned to the defendant.

BLOC GOVERNMENT

Those enterprising statesmen who have been most active in attempting to inaugurate the bloc system of government in the United States, can, if they are interested in the welfare of their country, get a great deal of good out of studying the present plight of France. France just now is a land of strange contradictions. Individually the people seem to be more prosperous than at anytime in their history. They have plenty of money, no idle men and are moreover doing business all over the world. They are even underselling us in some lines in the great American market, in spite of the protective tariff.

Yet the shadow of bankruptcy and revolution has been hovering over France for months. Why? The answer is of course too much politics, and no party government, instead a government of combinations of political blocs with kaleidoscopic changes and no natural policy.

For years, ever since the war, in fact, France has been drifting. No party has had enough and governments have been made up of combinations of conflicting interests called blocs. Some of the governments have been radical and others conservative. But they have been so full of promises in the very nature of things that they have stood for nothing.

No national policy in France has therefore been possible, and a concise national policy has been necessary on finances at least. As a result of this France has drifted to the brink of disaster. Poincaré is trying to stem the tide, and if he fails the country faces either a dictator or revolution.

France with a strong national party in control, of the kind we have in the United States, might have been saved long ago, but there can be no such party control in a government made up of blocs.

Yet this is a situation into which a number of our own statesmen would like to thrust us.

THE SOUTH AND THE TARIFF

For the purpose of keeping the record clear and before the stumpers who are preaching a grand political combination of the democratic south and the republican west, go too far in their plans for an agricultural millenium, let us see what the congressional roll calls shows:

Only fifteen democrats in the senate voted for the Norris, or committee, amendment, substituting the McNary-Haugen plan for the house co-operative plan and of the fifteen democrats only nine (Ashurt, Bratton, Caraway, Heflin, Jones of New Mexico, McKellar, Mayfield, Simmons and Tyson) are from the south.

Twenty-one democratic senators voted against the McNary-Haugen amendment, and fifteen of them are from the south. They are: Blease, Broussard, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Ransdell, Reed of Missouri, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Trammell and Underwood.

Princess Ileana of Rumania, mentioned as a prospective bride for the Prince of Wales, had a fall from a hammock. By all means get these young people together. Put him on a horse and her in a hammock and they'll surely fall for each other—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

We haven't studied that new European scheme for paying off all the world's debts at once, but on the face of it, it reminds us somewhat of a lot of those Florida real estate circulars.

BEAUTY HINTS

By Peggy Hopkins Joyce

The shiny nose is usually the first defect of which the growing girl becomes conscious and the first to acquire her attention. Too often she uses talcum powder before she feels old enough to buy her own face powder—and thus spoils her complexion by putting the wrong cosmetic on her face.

Or else she has an elder sister who uses powder, and helps herself out of that powder box without concerning herself about the shade or texture.

The best thing to do, when she feels she needs powder, is to go to a good druggist or beauty specialist and ask for an opinion on the kind and shade of powder best suited to her individual skin. Then to take the powder recommended and stick to it. Constant changing of brands is never wise.

HECKLING

In England heckling is done mostly in public halls; here we attend to it mostly in private.

If you feel it your wifely duty to probe deep into a wound, administer first some soft flattery as an anodyne. It will soften the cut of the words that follow—if you are sure you need to make the incision at all. Remember wounds ever afterward show scars. One question you ought always to ask yourself before you begin heckling your husband, is—“Is he a deep-dyed sinner or just a thoughtless mortal?” And always and ever remember that there is enormous room for improvement in most of us.

Every man expects to be appreciated by his wife. He will stand for criticism in public but wearies of fault finding in private.

Are you sure if you keep picking your husband to pieces, you can ever fit all together again as though there had never been a break? PROVERB: “I don't believe in deceivin' folks, but if you've had hard thoughts you ain't obligated to own 'em up.”

THE MOTHER OF CHARLES E. HUGHES

Most commentators on the life of Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, and one of the distinguished of living Americans, agree that his most outstanding traits, are his character and his education, and that both of these he owes to his parents.

Mr. Hughes was a peculiar boy. At the age of twelve he wrote essays on such subjects as, for example, “The Limitations of the Human Mind,” and “The Evil of Light Literature”; on rainy days at an even earlier age, he climbed to the attic and for diversion, took out a big map and studied geography; at the age of seven he wrote articles on religious topics which he discussed with his father, who was a Baptist minister.

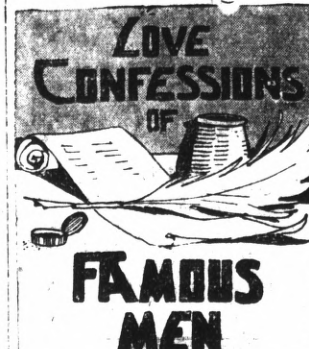

Such a boy needed careful upbringing and both his mother and father devoted their best attention to him. Sent to school at the age of five, he came home one day and told his parents he did not think he should attend school any more. The “scholars,” he said, were too slow in understanding their lessons and the teacher had to go over the same things many times. Consequently, he was wasting much time there. A better plan, he thought, would be to study at home.

Other parents might perhaps have given this precocious lad a good scolding and sent him back to the classroom; but not so Mr. and Mrs. Hughes. They agreed to the plan of this boy of five, recognizing that he showed an independence of thought and action that should be encouraged.

His father then taught him Greek and Latin and to his mother fell the task of providing him with the useful branches of scholastic education, such as mathematics and English. So his boyhood passed under the influence of these good and understanding parents and in their hands developed that man who was to play such an important part in the government of his country.

THE AUGUST SAMUEL JOHNSON'S LOVE

When Dr. Samuel Johnson lived he was the undisputed monarch of the literary world and his subjects bowed in awe before the majestic—but burly—form of the king.

This famous man, to whom the Encyclopedia Britannica gives no less than nine pages, was not a personality one would associate with romance, but there was one lady who captured his august heart. She was Mrs. Thrale, the widow of a brewer and one of the “salon” women of England.

Dr. Johnson's affection for her was broken when the lady suddenly fell in love with an Italian musician named Gabriel Piozzi and married him. Such behavior was rather characteristic of Mrs. Thrale. Even at the age of seventy she refused to deny herself the grace of an amour and gave her love to a young actor named Conway. Perhaps it was a pointed coincidence that Conway soon after drowned himself.

MRS. THRALE

When Johnson heard of Mrs. Thrale's betrayal of his affections he was greatly shocked and then, still more greatly angered. In this mood he sent her this message which despite its choleric, betrays the pleading lover:

“Madam: If I interpret your letter right, you are ignominiously married; if it is as yet undone let us once more talk together. If you have abandoned your children and your religion, God forgive your wickedness. If you have forfeited your fame and your country, may your folly do no further mischief. If the last act is yet to do, I, who have loved you and served you; I, who long thought you the first of woman-kind, entreat that, before your fate is irrevocable, I may once more see you.”

“I was, I once was, Madam, most truly yours,

BURNED AVENUE

"PADLOCKED" ON THE SCREEN AT CALIFORNIA

One of the most promising of the new crop of photoplays to be shown locally this week is "Padlocked," Paramount's powerful drama of contemporary American life, which makes its debut at the California Theatre today.

This screen play not only boasts the authorship of Rex Beach, one of America's most gifted writers of fiction, but the flawless direction of Allan Dwan and the meritorious acting of Lois Moran, Louise Dresser and Noah Berry—three factors that make it well worth seeing.

Another strong point in the picture's favor is the unusual array of talent Director Dwan has assembled to support the featured players. "Florence Turner, one of America's old favorites has returned after several years of retirement, to play the sympathetic role of the mother. Helen Jerome Eddy, admittedly one of the screen's outstanding character actresses, is ideally cast as a woman reformer. Allan Simpson, famous as the Arrow Collar model, has the hero part of the youthful society millionaire. Others in the impressive cast include Charles Lane, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Richard Arlen.

The story originally appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine as a serial and created nation-wide interest, because it was recognized as faithful mirroring modern life and morals. Its theme deals with the conflict between the strong individualism of our growing youth and the narrow conventionalism of the older folk.

Other features on the same program include "East Side, West Side," an imperial comedy; "Screen Snapshots" of movie stars at home, "International News," and Larry Canelo, at the organ.

ANNA Q. NILSSON HEADS CAST AT THE RICHMOND

"The Greater Glory," colossal screen play now showing at the Richmond Theatre here, represents more than a year of intense production on the part of June Mathis, famous screen writer, and a vast company of stars.

The picture is an adaptation of the celebrated novel, "The Greater Glory," by Edith O'Shaughnessy, wife of the American ambassador at Vienna. First National releases it.

Famous for her adaptation of "The Four Horsemen," which brought Rex Ingram and Rudolph Valentino to the fore, Miss Mathis considers "The Greater Glory" an even finer accomplishment. It brings to light a side of the war hitherto unknown. The fortunes of Vienna before and after the war are poignantly traced in the fortunes of a fine old Austrian family.

The cast of the principals include Anna Q. Nilsson, Conway Tearle, May Allison, Jan Keith, Jean Harlow and Lucy Beaumont. More than 1,600 extras participate in the mob scenes, which depict several riots, revolutionary strikes and American charity dispersions.

Other features on the same program include "Beware," a Lige Conley comedy; and "Prizma," the screen magazine.

Worshippers of Valentino Found In London England

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A mysterious body of sheik worshippers, the "Rudolph Valentino Guild," came into public notice today. Its president, Marcia Stanhope, using note paper without an address, writes a London newspaper protesting the statement that Rudy's second wife divorced him on the grounds of desertion, adding:

"At a time when Mr. Valentino is living ill, it is only fair his name should not be smirched by untrue scandal."

Thirty-two Valentino admirers, 24 of whom are not married, signed the protest.

EUROPE HAS 40,000 MILES OF AIR LINES

(By Universal Service)

By O. D. TOLISCHUS

(Copyright 1926, Universal Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—The airplane was an American invention.

Now it has become a public utility in most countries except America.

Twenty-three years have passed since the Wright Brothers first conquered the air. In that time, Europe has built up a tightly woven net of air-lines some 40,000 miles long, spreading like a spider-web all over the continent.

From London to Moscow, from Stockholm to Gibraltar and far down into Africa, and along some 25,000 miles of these lines, hundreds of airplanes scout along every day with clock-like regularity, carrying freight and passengers three times faster than the fastest train, and at practically the same expense.

There are express and interurban planes, specials, excursions and just sight-seeing planes. They fly by day and by night with equal ease, over land, sea and mountain peaks, connecting countries and continents, and former topographical obstacles are becoming scenic travel inducements of each value.

It takes almost four days and $95 to travel from London to Moscow by boat and train. It takes only 23 hours, with a nine hour stop-over in Berlin, and $125, to travel the same distance by plane, with the added inducement of having the churning waters of the channel, the garden landscape of Holland, the ancient castles and beautiful cities of Germany with their sky-scraper spires, and the vast expanses of Russia, spread out below one in an ever changing panoramic picture some twenty miles wide.

The trip from Paris to Berlin takes 22 hours and costs $35 by train. The same trip by plane over the war zone takes only eight hours and costs $45.

Club chairs and a kitchenette serving refreshments make the plane every bit as comfortable as the train. A flying map inciting a hunt for the rights and landmarks in the picture below shows away the boredom of travel, unless one is a reporter and is already busy pounding out the story on the typewriter. Experiments with a wireless telephone are under way and promise its early installation.

To travel by plane has become so common in Europe that it has lost its novelty and another thrill is becoming lost to the world.

What has America done in this time? It has established an air mail service that is a credit to the postoffice department, but nothing more. It holds third place in air armament and all its passenger air-lines have proved abortive. Yet America, with its vast areas and mighty distance, with its slogan of "Time is money," seems like a country predestined for travel by air.

For once, it seems, American genius has been unable to make maximum use of its own invention.

At the same time, in Asia, in Africa in South America, Europeans are busy developing air-lines, and transatlantic air lines are now considered merely a matter of a year or two. If the plans of the Germans don't go awry, an air line Berlin-Madrid-Buenos Ayres with 60 to 100 passenger monster planes will be opened possibly next year. And the possibilities of a ten or twelve hour service between Hamburg and New York through the so-called stratosphere—that is, seven or eight miles up where blizzards, tornadoes and thunderstorms don't reach and where the rarified air permits a speed of 250 to 300 miles an hour—is now subject of thorough scientific investigation by the "Gesellschaft fuer Hoehenflug-forschung E. V." of Berlin.

With the air-age emerging from infancy, America thus finds herself pretty well in the rear among the air powers—both in civil air transportation as well as air armament.

There is, however, more involved in the possession of a large-sized commercial air-fleet than mere prestige. The very destiny of the nation may depend on it.

Europe, at least, is fully convinced that a commercial air-fleet is acquiring the same importance to a modern nation that the military roads had for Rome and the merchant marine for the nations that followed it. Both revolutionized the psychology of nations, extended their view beyond the confines of a city, or a country, yes, even continents and became the carriers of empire. And Europe believes it sees a like revolution under way, now.

American commissions are coming to Europe to study how Europe does it.

Too much belief is put in the

Los Angeles Man Held in Mexico For Fraud Trial

(By Universal Service)
MEXICO CITY, Aug. 17.—J. H. Grande, of Los Angeles, was held in jail without bail today on a charge of breach of confidence in connection with dealings growing out of a contract with a Mexican banana company for the sale of fruit in California.

The charge against Grande was changed from fraud to the less serious one after intercession by the American consulate, but as the new charge is unobtainable, he was held pending trial.

Grande was first arrested on August 3 and was held incommunicado for six days.

Grande is a native-born American, 35 years of age, of the Osinsky family.

"European capitalism is living through a condition of great depression, it is true," he said, "but if it survives this last stage of crisis, it will come out again 'head-on' against American capitalism."

"American industry will soon be confronted by at least two dangerous opponents: France, and especially, Germany."

Germany is not only nearing the restoration of its production but is ready to begin a great, active struggle for foreign markets. She has already begun this struggle in America and in the Near East."

The Dawes plan, instead of being an unbearable burden for Germany as some of its deprecators insist, may prove the very stimulus needed to rejuvenate German industry, Ossinsky believes.

"To those who say the Dawes plan is hampering Germany, let us remind that the Brest-Litovsk treaty proved to be more useful to us—that country against which it was directed—than for those who drew it up. It gave us a breathing space to recuperate."

Effect on Dawes Plan
The quick changes in German economies will force the authors of the Dawes plan to retreat before the march of time," he said.

"The stabilization of European capital continues farther, not only Europe will restore herself to her former world position, but Germany will be resurrected from the dead," and very much changed in its interior and exterior structure.

"In the imperialist period before the war, Germany tried to push aside the ancient British empire's hegemony of the world. But in the long and stubborn battle between them, the winner was the United States, who harvested all the fruits of victory."

"America now is in the position which Germany hoped to capture on the eve of the war. A coalition of smaller and weaker nations fought Germany and her allies and brought her down. So now, too, another coalition of weaker and subjugated nations will eventually fight America."

RODGERS TO LEAD PLANES ON BIG FLIGHT

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Com-

HORRORS SAYS THE TOP KICK TO OLD SAILOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—"And so," remarked the hard-boiled top sergeant to the equally faint-like chief petty officer, "It has come to this!"

For the army is going to have a beauty contest, at least the Thirtieth Infantry, stationed at the San Francisco Presidio is.

Two days hence, Colonel Bolles, commanding officer of the regiment, will pass along the line of aspirants and after he has made a complete inspection of profiles he will name the winner.

Miss Beryl Mills, voted to be the most beautiful girl in Australia, who is on her way to Atlantic City to participate in a beauty contest, and Fay Lannier, "Miss America," will be present to help, if necessary, Colonel Bolles make his selection.

Never before, it is said, has the Presidio reached such a stage of excitement.

Beauty may be only skin deep, say the participants, but with a "Miss America" and a "Miss Australia" hovering nearby, the probing is likely to be particularly spirited. It is even hinted that the Adonis of the Thirtieth may have more than a passing chance to "cash in" on his personal beauty.

While Colonel Bolles issued orders for the band to begin practicing "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," he intimated the winner of the contest would be given a trip to Hollywood—presumably for a visit to the sector where the male beauty florishes.

"And so," said

German Novel Says Germany Won the War

BERLIN, August 17.—German dreams of victory and escape from the bondage of defeat are portrayed in a novel now running in the nationalist and fascist press.

The victory is achieved in a war started by England, France, Italy and Poland in an effort to destroy a reviving Germany completely, according to this novel.

But Germany shatters their plans by a new death-ray which annihilates the hostile air-fleets as they start on their flight of destruction over the German cities.

A German admiral presses a button, thousands of mysterious lights flare up along the threatened borders and the proud air armadas crash to the earth.

The wishes and hopes of the German Nationalists, however, have become very moderate to judge from the peace terms which a victorious Germany imposes on her would-be destroyers. The German peace terms are pictured as follows:

"Within the old borders of 1914, the new Reich rose anew, expanded by the inclusion of the German-Austrian brother nation."

"The old German colonies are returned. The necessary officials, officers and soldiers are already on the way to them."

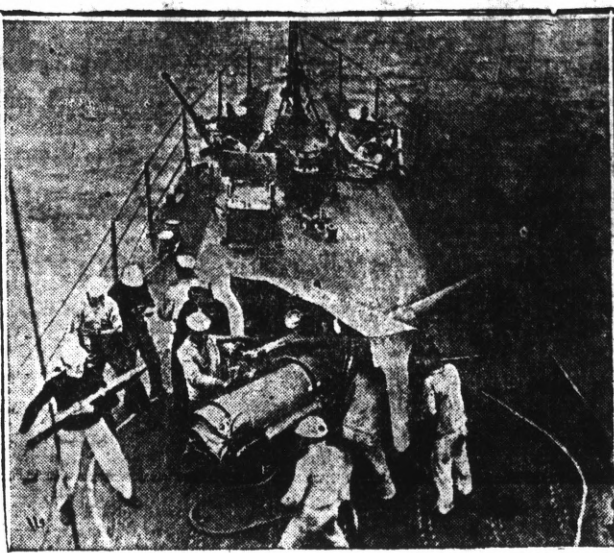

"Only in the Pacific were the powers unable to induce Japan to surrender the German territories which she administered. Germany, however, did not relinquish her claim. She reserved to herself the right to demand compensations elsewhere if her property was not returned to her within a limited time."

"The East African question found a solution acceptable to all parties. Germany ceded to England a strip of territory 200 kilometers wide from the southwestern point of the Victoria Lake to the Nyassa Lake and received in return an equivalent territory of English Nigeria ad-

More important, however, is the following: It has become a common saying in Germany that after the fifteen million votes rolled up against the princes during the recent referendum on the proposal to confiscate the properties of the former rulers, the monarchy could be restored in Germany only after a victorious war."

The novel is called "The Flight to the Sun," by Paul Thieme.

BRILLIANT BALL GIVEN SPANISH KING AND QUEEN

(By Universal Service)

By PRINCESS MARIE DE BOURBON MADRID, August 17.—The Duke and Duchess de Alba, well known in the United States, gave the most brilliant ball Madrid has known in two decades at their residence, the Palace of Liria, just prior to the departure of King Alfonso and his Queen on a tour of the Continent.

The ball was preceded by a dinner given for the King and Queen and the Crown Prince, popularly known in Spain as the Principe de Asturias.

At the dinner, three tables were used. One was presided over by H. M. the King and the Duchess de Alba sat at his table. At the second table H. M. the Queen presided, with the Duke de Alba seated there. The third one was allotted to the Crown Prince and at this table was the Duchess de Sotomayor (sister of the Duke de Alba). The other guests were the Ladies of Honor and the Chamberlains of Service for that night with the King, Queen and Crown Prince, with a sprinkling of Grandees of Spain.

Silver, Saxon porcelain and flowers were the ornaments of these three tables. The dinner was served according to a specially selected menu and was rendered all the more pleasant by melodious music.

The ball started at 11 o'clock and it was honored, not only by the sovereigns, but also by the presence of H. R. H. the Infanta Isabel (sister of the late King), H. R. H. Ferdinand, Prince of Bavaria and Infante of Spain, H. H. the Duchess de Talavera, the Diplomatic Body and the nobility of Madrid.

The Palace, environed by a huge garden, is of large dimensions and contains a numberless collection of antique furniture, tapestries and paintings by masters of the past and present, the two paintings from life of the Duke and Duchess de Alba being very beautiful. These two pictures are the principal ones in two different salons. All the walls are splendidly decorated with costly chandeliers, and the ceilings embellished by fresco paintings. The floor carpets are gorgeous and numerous show cases are placed about containing rare works of art, while others show the extraordinary collection of stuffed animals hunted by the Duke himself in Asia and Africa.

The garden, which is filled with trees has the same level as the ground floor at the front part of the building, while the rest is a garden terrace on a level with the first floor and it was on this garden terrace that a waxed carpet was spread for dancing.

Queen Victoria Eugenia was dressed in white, embroidered with strips of bright glass beads and a Spanish shawl at the shoulders. She wore diamonds of extraordinary beauty, especially her necklace. She looked very beautiful and danced several times with the American Ambassador, Mr. Hammond.

The Charleston Orchestra of New York was playing outside, while another orchestra, called "The Ramalli," was playing in the dancing salon.

Many were playing at card games and installed in one of the salons was a small stage, where the very Spanish "Pastora Imperio" was dancing. Montoye was playing the guitar and "La Nina de los peines" (The Girl of the IV Surj) was singing.

Chocolate Kids Disappoint the Red Audiences

LENNINGRAD, Aug. 17.—The Odyssey of the "Chocolate Kiddies," theatrical troupe of American negroes on a tour of Europe and points East had a sad chapter added here.

After taking Moscow by storm and being the subject of much puzzled comment, the negroes came to Leningrad to give an example of the art of the "aboriginals" as the Russians called them, to the people of this one-time efete capital.

They were invited to give a benefit performance at the "House of Art" after their regular show at the theater. Sam Wooding, leader of the jazz band agreed similarly to everything asked by the Russian gentleman who was arranging the performance. Wooding didn't understand Russian and the gentleman didn't understand English, but they came to an agreement nevertheless.

The affair was widely advertised and many tickets sold. On the big night the crowd began to gather at eleven after the regular theater hours, expecting to get an eye-full of negro art. The crowd collected. The crowd waited. From eleven until twelve o'clock. From twelve until one. But in Russia things never begin on time, so no one began to really get restless until two o'clock. Then there were murmurs.

"Wonder what's the matter with those dark savages," the waiting lines growled. At last at three A. M. the manager of the show "regretted to announce that since the artists had not shown up, there would be no benefit performance, and everybody would get his money back at the ticket window."

Next day the irate manager published a scathing article in the paper saying that never had the House of Art suffered such treatment, and that he intended calling the attention of the International Union of Artists to the singular behavior of the Chocolate Kiddies.

Not until someone told the jazz band director about the scathing article was an explanation forthcoming. Wooding had thought the gentleman arranging the benefit show was inviting them to partake of a big banquet. So his whole company of forty members trooped into the dining room of the House of Art and waited, patiently, until three A. M.

"When we finally saw we wouldn't get that banquet we went home," explained Wooding.

The Manager of the House of Art accepted that explanation and retracted his harsh words. He said he wouldn't notify the International Union of Artists after all.

was shown by the other guests assembled at this part of the entertainment. Among the latter was Mrs. Hammond, looking very pretty in a white dress and jewels.

The Duchess de Alba was beautifully dressed in grey tissue, covered with net of the same color, splashed with china beads. Several strings of pearls adorned her neck, while her earrings were of emeralds and diamonds.

Altogether the feast was beautiful and the garden seemed a fairy's dream with the twinkling lights, the ground almost entirely covered by carpets and the sculptured fountain near the wall, illuminated red; the three jets slowly throwing up water in the fountains at the back part of the Palace where the garden again is of the same level as the ground floor of the building.

TESTIMONY IS TAKEN IN HALL MURDER TRIAL

(By Universal Service)

By EARL L. SHAUB SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 17.—Testimony tending to prove that Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall quarreled with her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall was given in court today.

This dramatic turn was supplied by William J. O'Rourke, contractor, one of the principal witnesses at the hearing which is to determine whether "Willie" Stevens and Henry Carpenter, charged with the double murder, shall be released on bond pending grand jury action. Stevens is the simple minded brother of Mrs. Hall, who is also charged with the killings. Carpenter, a Wall street broker, is her cousin.

O'Rourke said that as he passed by the 331 Madison farm where the murders took place, he saw a woman who resembled Mrs. Hall upbraiding another woman who resembled Mrs. Mills. Standing by was a man who looked to him like Dr. Hall.

He said that he had often seen Hall on the farm at night with women other than his wife.

His intimation that Hall's wife and sweetheart had a quarrel a few minutes before the slaying and near the scene tends to contradict Mrs. Hall's statement that she did not know her husband and Mrs. Mills were carrying on a clandestine love affair.

O'Rourke's testimony was just one of several stories that the state laid today in the case it is constructing against the accused trio.

Other outstanding testimony today was:

Assertion by John W. Underwood, captain of the Jersey City police, that when he arrested Willie Stevens the latter collapsed in a chair, wept and exclaimed: "I knew it would come to this."

Statement of Barbara Tough, maid in the Hall household, that Mrs. Hall was calm when she was informed of the murders.

A statement that Mrs. Hall's tan coat might have had blood stains on it when she sent it to Philadelphia to have it dyed black after the murders.

Barbara Tough, one of the principal witnesses of the day, said she had seen Mrs. Mills sitting in the rector's lap in his study at the church a few weeks before the murders.

She said it was common gossip that the affair had been going on for six years and was especially pronounced for a year and a half before it was ended in death.

She does not believe, she said, that Mrs. Hall knew about it. She testified that when she suggested that Mrs. Hall notify the police that her husband was missing that Mrs. Hall replied: "Oh, no, I don't want any publicity."

How badly the investigation of four years ago was bungled was brought out today when Undertaker Hubbard testified that Detective John Totten did not know how many times Mrs. Mills had been shot until he told him.

"When I told Totten Mrs. Mills had been shot four times instead of one as he supposed, Totten exclaimed: 'Well, doesn't that beat the devil,' the undertaker said."

The undertaker also testified that Hall and Mrs. Mills evidently put up a strong battle before they were slain. Mrs. Mills' arm was badly bruised and Hall had bruises on his body, the kind of marks that are made by being struck.

One of the gruesome exhibits of the day was the introduction of the clothes Hall and Mrs. Mills wore at the time they were killed. The garments, some of them red and rent, were taken from two bags and shown to Judge Cleary. Stevens and Carpenter went back to jail when the hearing was adjourned today. More evidence will be introduced tomorrow.

JACK DEMPSEY WORRIED BY NEW LAW SUITS

(By Universal Service)
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Aug. 17.—Jack Dempsey trains here for his fight with Gene Tunney next month in a more uncertain state of mind than he was at Shelby before the 15 round fight with Tom Gibbons. In Montana Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, knew all along that the fight would take place but did not weaken in their demands for the third $100,000 until two days before the date. Dempsey has no accurate idea now what is going to happen to his New York engagement with the ex-marine. The champion was mumbling about Shelby today when served with papers in another law suit. This time Ray Cannon, Milwaukee lawyer is suing the champion for $29,450 for legal and other services rendered from 1918 until last winter. The sum did not begin to stack up with $33,333 that Kearns sued him for on Monday. That gave Dempsey a laugh. He is getting used to the process server stalking him and remarked today that with a few more suits he will have a new wardrobe.

Taylor to Get Chance At Title

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Bud Taylor may be boxing for the last time as the "uncrowned" bantam-weight champion of the world when he meets Dixie Lee in the auditorium tomorrow night. In less than a month Taylor will lose Phil Rosenberg for the title in Chicago and Los Angeles fans consider him as good as "in."

Second Auto Load Of Liquor Found Near Coolidge Camp

(By Universal Service)
PAUL SMITH, NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—For the second time since the arrival of President Coolidge an auto load of bootleg liquor was today seized near the summer White House. State motorcycle police came upon an overturned auto which had skidded off the road down an embankment and was then abandoned during a blinding rainstorm just before day-break. It was on the state highway from Canada two miles north of White Pine Camp.

Twenty dozen bottles of Canadian Ale were found in the auto. It was evening. A boy stood on the bridge, clapping his hands in great joy. Beyond the hill, a dull red glow lit up the sky. "Ah, little boy," remarked the stranger, who was a little near-sighted, "it does my heart good to see you appreciate beautiful sky effect."

"Yes sir," replied the lad. "I've been watching it for ten minutes." "A real poet, without a doubt. And do you watch the sunset often, my boy?" "Sunset? Why that ain't a sunset mister. That's the schoolhouse burnin' down."

TENNIS AND GOLF FEATURE 1926 SPORTS

NEW YORK, August 17.—Now that the 1926 half year post in that honest of all Derbies, the Time Handicap, has been passed, conjectures as to who will be the year's outstanding athlete are in order.

In '24 John Q. Citizen, on occasions was known to let his breakfast coffee grow cold, so interested was he to read of the latest track record to be broken by Paavo Nurmi. Finland's modern Mercury. And it wasn't necessary to perform that act known by the stock phrase of "turning over to the sports page." The behavior of the talented Finnish visitor with the trick first name, like John D. Rockefeller's newest golf score or color of the ties worn by Peggy Joyce's most recent husband, became front page must material.

Then in '25 a husky football halfback who had mastered the more or less marvelous trick of eluding an opposing tackler and then keeping just one step ahead of him, made ice peddling as hallowed an occupation for the youth of the land as the fabled rail splitting. And although Johnny might leave out the L in Lincoln's name he would gladly spell Illinois, for you, the name of the college whose colors the great "Red Grange" wore into battle.

And now with 1926 half gone it appears as though the premier athletic honors may be won by a girl. For with the exception of the British strike no event kept the cable editors so busy as the spectacular battle for the women's world tennis championship between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen.

It was a colorful picture and one that completely captured the eye of a susceptible sports public, that of America's stout hearted little tennis crusader faring forth into the enemy country and stroking her way through the many champions that the continent sent again her.

And when we scan the remainder of the possibilities for the rank of the year's most highly exploited athlete it seems that the field narrows down to Americans who invaded Europe's sport battle grounds.

Golf has furnished next in order for the mythical honor in Jesse Sweetser, the new British Amateur champion and Bobby Jones, the British Open champion.

Sweetser, whose fame grew mushroom-like, overnight, when he broke the jinx which had thwarted every American since the time of Walter Travis, is now being claimed by as many localities as was Homer. Born in Kentucky, schooled in the ways of the links in St. Louis, sprung into fame while a resident of New York—who shall receive the greatest credit for giving to America her first native born British Amateur champion?

But there still remain before the mythical champion of 1926 can be crowned five months which include a world series and a college football season which promises even to surpass last year's tumultuous fall.

DEMPSEY
In spite of the fact that the New York Athletic commission refused Dempsey a license to fight Gene Tunney popular demand ask that Gene be given a chance to knock the "champion" for a row of ash cans. Give Dempsey a license seems to be the popular demand and it is not that the fan want to see Dempsey battle a much as they want to see the ex-marine show Dempsey who's who and why.

SUZANNE

According to an announcement made by C. C. Pyle yesterday, Suzanne Lenglen will have nine opponents for her tour of the United States and Pyle will not ask tennis clubs to let him use their grounds to stage the play. Instead he has declared he will build his own battle grounds.

BOXING

Three French boxers will make their initial appearance in this country some time in the near future. Francis Charles, light heavyweight will meet Paul Berlenbach; Fred Bertonneau will battle Johnny Dundee in the lightweight class and Andre Routs and Eddie Anderson will battle in the featherweight class.

TRUDY EDERLE

Since the English have cast one or two, if not more, stuns on the prowess of Trudy Ederle, she has replied with a challenge to swim the channel against any English man or woman for a purse of $20,000. An English newspaper alleges that a tug helped Miss Ederle swim the channel, protecting her from the heavy swells and tide.

MORE ON DEMPSEY

Now that Dempsey may meet Gene, fighters, ex-fighters and alleged fighters are taking the bored world who is going to win. Georges Carpentier comes through with an announcement that Dempsey is going to wallop Gene and then going to beat up Harry Wills. Fans are hoping that Georges is "all wet."

PULL up a chair and pull out the papers. Borrow a thimbleful of Prince Albert and roll one of the grandest cigarettes you ever smoked. Better still, buy yourself a tidy red tin of good old Prince Albert, because you're going to need a supply of it. Yes, Sir!

The first thing you notice is how easily this tobacco rolls. No fuss or muss. No fluttering to the floor in a waste of time, temper and tobacco. That's because Prince Albert is crimp-cut and stays put in the papers while you're rolling it. Ideal makin's, Men!

These cigarettes are cool-smoking... refreshingly cool. They are sweet and fragrant as dew-kissed blossoms. If you have never rolled a cigarette with P. A., you have no notion of how good a home-rolled cigarette can be. Try this better cigarette tobacco today.

For variety, try a load of this same wonderful tobacco in your pipe. Prince Albert gets you more pleasure out of a pipe than any other fuel you could feed. Pipe-smokers say P. A. is so genuinely friendly to tongue, throat and general disposition. Try P. A. this way too.

U. S. CITIZENS IN MEXICO TO BE PROTECTED

(By Universal Service)
PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—President Coolidge is firmly resolved that the United States government shall employ every means within its power to protect the lives and property of Americans in Mexico.

That declaration was made in positive terms in his behalf here today in the first review of the presidential attitude on Mexico since the Knights of Columbus appealed for a definite break between the two governments.

President Coolidge, following the conferences of three days with his secretary of state, has decided to adhere to his original intention to reject the appeal for cessation of diplomatic relations.

That there is no legal right under international law to interfere with such a purely domestic matter as the Mexican contest between the state and the church was officially announced as the attitude of the President.

But the government is fully determined to prevent the rights of persons and property from being infringed, and will do what it can to see that they are duly respected it was declared.

It was indicated that the relationships between the two governments have been harmonious.

Mexico has already made large concessions to this government under the alien land laws, against which Secretary Kellogg had protested, it was announced. A number of Americans demands are yet to be determined, but these evidently are being negotiated through peaceful diplomatic channels without anger.

President Coolidge has been informed of only one seizure of supposedly American property under the church laws during the conflict between church and state, it was said.

Ambassador Sheffield immediately lodged complaint with the Mexican authorities, it was said, and was at once advised that the matter would be adjusted.

Under section thirty-three of the Mexican constitution, some Americans have been "thirty-three" expelled from Mexico, this government has been advised.

Whenever complaint is made against these expulsions, Sheffield negotiates with the Mexican government, it was said. In some cases the orders of expulsion have been rescinded. Mexico contends, however, that she has complete jurisdiction over the behavior of foreigners in her country just as the United States is able to make deportations under the immigration laws.

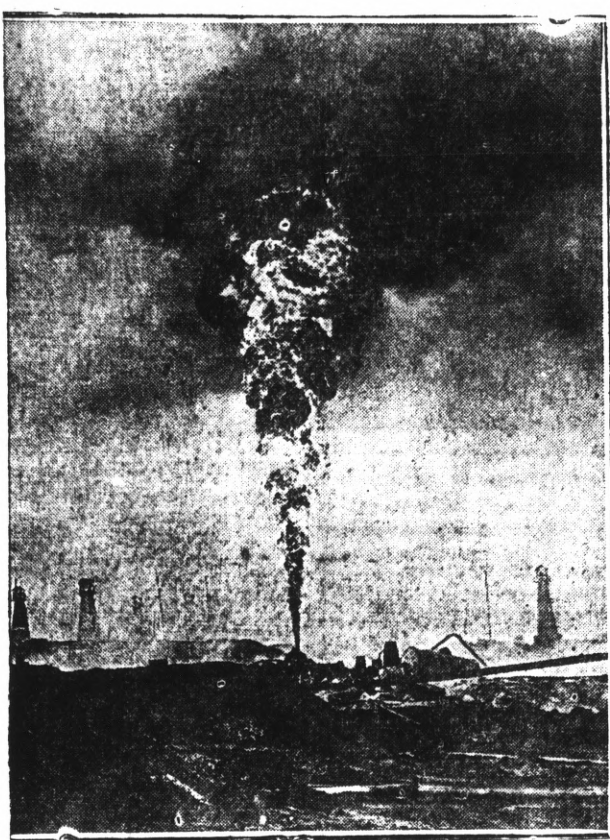

It was indicated that the relations between the two governments are far from the crisis stage, but that messages are being exchanged on the alien land laws, which, some Americans believe, will result in confiscation of their property.

SCANDINAVIAN IMPORTS HEAVY

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Scandinavian countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark, import more than a billion dollars of products a year for their 12,000,000 population, the Commerce Department stated today.

These countries are probably the most attractive export market in the world for American automotive manufacturers, the department said.

In pointing out the importance of the Scandinavian trade, the department revealed that Spain and Italy with a combined population five times that of Scandinavia exceed it in imports by only about 20 per cent.

The per capita value of Scandinavian imports is $38 a year while that of Spain and Italy is around $18, it was stated.

El Cerrito Pair Held On Liquor Charge

Following an automobile chase in El Cerrito by undercover men of the prohibition department, Frank P. Pundy, 29, a clerk, and Edward A. Nelson, 35, a machinist, are under arrest in the county jail in March.

During the chase, one of the prohibition agents attempted to jump from his machine to the one in which two suspects were driving and was injured in a fall. A. M. Ward was injured when the wheels of the pursued car ran over one of his legs as he attempted to make the leap. The injuries were not serious and he was able to return to his home in Berkeley.

A jug had been thrown from the car when the officers attempted to arrest the men and the agents sopped up some of the liquor to keep as evidence, they reported.

LOCAL GROCERS WILL ATTEND STATE SESSION

G. Kelley and A. S. Whitesides will represent Richmond at the state convention of the Retail Grocers to be held at Del Monte on September 20, 21 and 22, according to announcements made at the session of the Contra Costa county Retail Grocers held last night in the Richmond clubhouse. Other delegates named last night included J. S. O'Morra, Pittsburg; W. A. Davis, Crockett; Frank Silva, Antioch; E. K. Lush, Pittsburg and Warren B. Lush, Pittsburg.

Charles Meyer, representative of Armour and company, of Chicago, was present last night and talked upon the "Trade Relation Bureau of the Armour company."

State Field Secretary C. C. Conolly of San Francisco was present last night and R. Sorenson, also of San Francisco, manager of the United Grocers was also present. George Morrow of Martinez presided over the session.

Meyer's talk was upon "What Do the People Want?"

He outlined the five fundamental principles of successful merchandising: Convenience to the consumer through artistic store and window displays; cleanliness and the development of appetite appeal through its influence upon the housewife; courtesy, the builder of great businesses; credits, intelligently extended and promptly collected; capital carefully conserved yet judiciously invested so that the patron may have ample stock to select from; and conscientiousness—ever alertness to deliver the utmost of satisfaction through quality of products and satisfactory service.

"Trade associations offer a wonderful opportunity to the individual business man," he said. "Interchange of ideas are invaluable. In many cities, retail grocers hold weekly classes on retail merchandising to which all their employees are invited and prizes awarded for the best selling suggestions. The old order of things has passed. Only the very newest ideas find place with the progressive food merchant of today."

Honor Post to Attend Session At Walnut Creek

According to an announcement made last night at the session of the Honor Post, Veterans of the Foreign Wars a big banquet will be held at Walnut Creek on next Saturday by the Walnut Creek post to stimulate interest in the Walnut Creek commandery. A big parade will be staged there and the colors of the different posts of the east bay section will be displayed. Honor Post members plan to attend the session.

No report was made last night of the progress of the membership campaign as each side is keeping secret the number of members they have gained. Rivalry is keen each side is battling to be the one that will be honored at a banquet served by the losing side.

C. C. Campbell, quartermaster for some time in the local post tendered his resignation last night to accept a position in Berkeley.

T. G. Lang has been appointed to take his place.

Four new members were initiated last night under the direction of Commander Ralph Woods.

Carmel Witnesses Not to Be Called in Trial of Newsboys

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Witnesses from Carmel will not be present at the trial next Monday of four newsboys on charges of selling obscene literature. Municipal Judge Rosenkrantz today denied application for subpoenas by Attorney Milton Golden representing the newsboys. Golden's affidavit was insufficient to show the materiality of the testimony sought the court held.

Charges against the newsboys is based on an alleged objectionable article printed in a San Diego paper concerning the asserted abduction of Almee Semple McPherson.

U. S. Board Will Continue Western Steamship Lines

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, August 17.—The shipping board will continue to operate its two lines out of Portland and Seattle and not advertise them for sale, it was decided today after a study of the market.

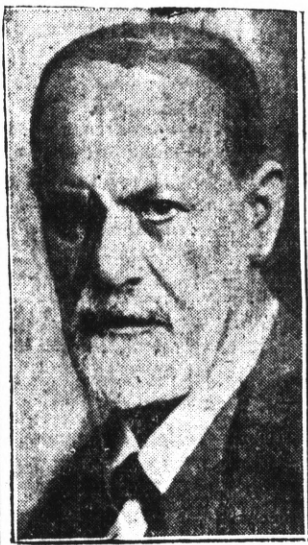

This decision was reached upon receipt of a telegram from Senator McNary, Oregon, who asked if the Oregon Oriental, out of Portland and the American Oriental freight service, out of Seattle, were to be sold. There had been persistent reports to this effect. The board is anxious to sell it was said, when conditions are better and a fair price with guarantee of service may be obtained.

Gaines Defense Rests Its Case

(By Universal Service)
SEATTLE, Aug. 17.—The defense rested its case late this afternoon in the trial of Wallace Gaines, World War veteran, accused of murdering his daughter Sylvia, 22 year old Smith college graduate, on the shore of Green Lake the night of June 16. Gaines had occupied the stand nearly all day, denying repeatedly a "confession" the state contends he made to Louis Stern, a drinking companion and refuting the charge that he and Sylvia maintained "a strange relationship" over a period of months. Despite a harrowing cross-examination by Prosecutor Colvin he was calm and unshaken as he left the stand.

Court recessed after the defense rested to permit the prosecution to assemble its witnesses for rebuttal.

PLANTS SAID TO HAVE HEART

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, Aug. 17.—Researches into what he describes as the mystery of life has proved to Sir Chandra Bose, the Indian scientist, famous throughout the world for his researches into plant life, the co-relation of the life organism of the plant and that of the human being.

This much he told the Royal Horticultural society here in a lecture on the fruits of his recent experiments.

"Plants," Sir Chandra once again asserted, "have hearts which pulsate, and leaf muscles which can expand and contract, and are sensitive, like human beings, to emotion."

"Plants are even more sensitive than human beings," he declared. "When I applied a test to see what amount of electrical shock it took for a human tongue to perceive the sensation, as compared with the amount required by a plant, I found the human being required ten times as much."

Illustrating his contention that plants have emotions, Sir Chandra mentioned he was measuring the life pulsations of a plant, which were very regular, when suddenly they became feeble, indicating depression. "Looking for a cause," he added, "I observed a faint cloud passing over the sun. The plant's 'spirits' rose immediately the cloud passed."

"A plant 'speaks' and writes its life history with its leaves," he said. "The muscle joining the leaf to the stem relaxes when a plant receives a shock and the leaf droops. In excessive heat or cold the energy of a plant becomes sluggish," he declared.

Sir Chandra mentioned that he had made an important discovery indicating that plant life was so allied to that of man that the experience gained from experiments on plants might be applied to the cure of human ills.

"When I introduced poison into a plant the life pulsations came gradually to a stop," he said. "Yet with a drug made from the deadly poison cobra venom, I have several times revived a dying plant."
